If you are arrested or detained, under the Fijian Constitution, you have the right to:

- be informed in a language that you understand of the reason for your arrest or detention;
- be informed of the possible charges that maybe brought against you;
- remain silent;
- be informed of the consequences of not remaining silent;
- communicate with a lawyer of your choice at your own cost and the right to free legal advice from the Legal Aid Commission, communication with a lawyer will be in private in the place where you are detained;
- not be forced into making a confession that could be used against you;
- be held separately from persons who are serving a sentence of imprisonment;
- be kept separate from adults if you are under 18 years of age;
- be brought before a court within 48 hours after your arrest, or if that is not reasonably possible, as soon as possible, thereafter;
- adequate accommodation, food and medical treatment;
- inform someone of your arrest including the right to communicate with a family member or a social worker.
